COURSE CONTENT AND PURPOSE

This course is designed for the second year of piano study and more advanced level of piano learning. It provides the study of techniques leading to the mastery of a keyboard instrument, including physical techniques, practice methods, repertoires, styles, and their interpretations, comfort in performance settings, improvisation, and the integration of appropriate concepts from music theory and history. All keyboard students will explore a comprehensive range of solo and chamber music repertoire from various cultures through applied lessons, studio classes, guest artist performances, faculty and student recitals, and master classes.

This course will lead students to extensive repertoire and profound musicianship, help them how to express music through the knowledge, and prepares them to perform at a level suitable for various settings, including education, solo performances, and both small and large ensembles.

Additionally, music majors will be well-prepared for the piano proficiency exam and the placement test at four-year universities. Piano major students will be able to prepare for their degree recital and university auditions.

EXPECTED LEARNING OUTCOMES

Upon completion of this course, students should be able to:

- Enhance fundamentals of piano learning such as intervals, fingering, articulations, rhythms, the balance of melody and accompaniment, velocity, and pedaling.
- Obtain advanced keyboard skills in all Major and minor keys.
- Demonstrate a variety of practice techniques, leading to an ability to perform with competence on their instrument.

- Improve sight-reading, memorization, and confidence in a live performance setting and demonstrate knowledge of the repertoire regularly performed on their instrument.
- Practice technical studies not only to enhance comprehension and enjoyment of playing the piano but also to prepare the piano proficiency exam for music majors.
- Integrate music theory and history into their performance preparation.

METHODS FOR ASSESSING EXPECTED LEARNING OUTCOMES

The expected learning outcomes will be assessed through the:

Class preparation, in-class performances, quizzes, exams, and final recital
