FACULTY EXCELLENCE AWARD

Sheyleah Harris

*Professor and Chairperson in Mathematics,
Engineering and Computer Science
2024 Faculty Excellence Award*

For Dr. Sheyleah V. Harris-Plant, being a faculty member at South Plains College is an opportunity to help students succeed in their future endeavors in and outside the classroom.

Sheyleah has been a teacher for more than two decades and has spent most of her teaching career transforming the lives of SPC students in the college's Mathematics, Engineering and Computer Science Department. She said every student has a dream of success they want to fulfill someday, and they will need support in executing this dream.

"Humans tend to see the big goal but don't understand the small steps needed to get to the big goal," she said. "My job is to help students see the small steps, show them how to achieve small goals and communicate that each small goal is a step closer to the big goal and their dream."

Sheyleah started her college education at Enterprise State Community College in Enterprise, Alabama and later obtained an Associate of Arts with an emphasis in math. After receiving her Bachelor of Arts in Math from Huntingdon College in Montgomery, Alabama, she traveled to Lubbock to earn her Master of Science in Math and Doctor of Philosophy in Higher Education from Texas Tech University.

Despite being finished with her college education, Sheyleah never stops learning. She constantly develops her teaching and leadership skills to ensure she can set her students up for success. She is certified in Blackboard Ultra, has served as a 2022 Title V Leadership Academy fellow and has attended multiple professional development workshops regarding quality teaching practices and tools.

Sheyleah also helped the SPC Math Department faculty create a math foundations class with built-in study skills and required tutoring for Adult Basic Education-level students and develop a year-long college algebra class for online dual credit students.

In addition to her teaching and chairperson duties at SPC, Sheyleah has served on the college's Academic Council, Building and Grounds Committee and Evaluation Committee. She also helps recruit students for the Mathematics, Engineering and Computer Science Department at college fairs and attends transfer summits with other institutions. Outside of SPC, she dedicates time to tutoring Lubbock middle school students in math.

Sheyleah understands math can be difficult for students. Therefore, she has provided multiple opportunities for her students to learn from their mistakes and grow.

"I try to find ways to help students succeed by providing some tools to help them learn and eliminating any excuse for why they could not be successful," she said.

Creating a motivational syllabus that encourages students to read and remember class policies and dedicating class time to active learning are just a few of the approaches Sheyleah has implemented. She also utilizes a flipped classroom model to let students personalize the speed of the lectures.

"Some students need material presented slower and repeated, which cannot be accommodated in a classroom limited by time," she said regarding the use of a flipped classroom model.

Another tool Sheyleah uses to help students is Microsoft OneNote. These digital notebooks let her class access notes from in-person and virtual office visits and math problems covered during the lectures.

Regarding active learning, Sheyleah said she works out half of the math examples in lecture videos and encourages students to attempt the rest. To aid in this process, she structures her lecture notes to match the lecture videos.

Via Gradescope—another resource Sheyleah uses to grade and keep student assignments anonymous—students can access her detailed feedback with the math notation.

"I provide the key with solutions worked out step by step to every practice problem, and some of the more challenging practice problems have videos for students to watch me work it out at their own pace," she said.

In addition to providing solutions to every graded assignment after the due date, Sheyleah also requires her students to reflect on their study habits every week and learn from their mistakes. Through this process, students can see the improvements they need to make to excel in the class.

"I do everything I can to show and teach the habits that can be altered to achieve success," she said. "I try to communicate to each student I interact with that I am working with them to achieve their goal, not trying to stand in their way and prevent them from achieving it."

Teaching allows Sheyleah to help students succeed in any aspect of their lives, not just education.

"I view every interaction with our students as a teaching opportunity," she said. "The opportunity may be over life skills, how to cope with stress, how to solve a quadratic equation or how to graduate and transfer to another institution, but each interaction is an opportunity to improve each student's life."

PRESIDENT'S STUDENT OF THE YEAR

Edgar Delgado

President's Student of the Year Recipient

Edgar Delgado of Sudan has been named the 2024 recipient of South Plains College's President's Student of the Year award.

The President's Student of the Year is an honor presented annually to an outstanding student who exemplifies excellence in academics and has contributed the most to the SPC campus environment. It is the highest recognition a student can receive at the college.

Edgar, a graduating business administration major, was surprised to be recognized with this honor from the college. He said the people working at SPC really care for the student body. "I come from a really small town," he said. "Coming to SPC, I thought I would blend in with the crowd, so being recognized with this award is really cool."

Attending a school closer to home and the cost of tuition were a few reasons Edgar said SPC became his top pick to start his college journey.

In addition, Edgar said he does not feel like a number at SPC compared to how some students at bigger universities may feel. After graduating high school, he said the small class sizes at SPC were another important factor that drew him to the college.

"I was really scared that I was going to be shocked at a bigger university," he said regarding his thought process when selecting a college. "I was able to ease into the college experience at SPC."

For Edgar, an important component of the effortless transition to SPC was being able to easily connect with the faculty members. This opportunity to bond with his professors was a benefit he liked most about the college.

"If I have a question in class, it's easier to raise my hand and get an answer from the professor," he said regarding the small class sizes. "When I go to a professor's office hours, I'm actually connecting with the professor."

Dr. Sherley Rios, associate professor of sociology, was Edgar's Mexican American studies instructor. He said Dr. Rios was always available in class and during office hours when he needed help.

"I took her class, and, at the same time, I started the Hispanic organization on campus (Juntos Somos Más)," he said. "She was the one helping me put the organization together."

Edgar also credits Anastasia Maldonado, coordinator of New Student Programs at SPC, as a significant contributor to the creation and organization of Juntos Somos Más. In addition to being the student founder of the organization, he served as a Campus Ambassador.

Being inducted into the Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society and being named the 2024 Homecoming King (representing Juntos Somos Más) are other achievements Edgar experienced while at SPC.

Edgar is the son of Dagoberto and Martha Delgado, and he is a graduate of Sudan High School. After graduating from SPC, he will transfer to Texas Tech University to pursue a degree in finance and hopes to attend law school someday.

SPENCER AWARDS

Caden Lamb
Thomas Spencer, Sr. Award Recipient

Caden Lamb of Santa Rosa, New Mexico has been named the 2024 recipient of South Plains College's Thomas Spencer, Sr. Award for Outstanding Achievement.

The award is presented annually to an outstanding student who demonstrates the qualities of leadership and service to the college and community. The late Dr. Thomas Spencer, Sr., played an important role in the formative years of SPC as its founding president. In conjunction with the college's 40th anniversary, the Thomas Spencer Sr. Award was established in 1998.

Caden, a diesel service technology major graduating with his advanced diesel equipment certificate, said receiving the award is a big honor.

"It wasn't something I was expecting," he said. "But to be recognized with the award is a very big surprise."

Before attending SPC, Caden said he researched the college and liked the idea of being on a smaller campus. Attending SPC also allowed him to be closer to his brother who lives in Levelland.

"SPC is close-knit and feels a lot like family," he said. "It's really easy to make close friends."

At the college, Caden developed connections with multiple faculty members as well. Joanna Byrne, program coordinator and assistant professor in diesel service technology, is a faculty member who pushed him and his classmates to be the best technicians, students and people.

Through First Baptist Church, Caden received a lot of encouragement from Sharon Race, professor of English and chair of the English and Philosophy Department. His faith has always been an important part of his life.

"Baptist Student Ministry has been absolutely amazing," he said. "I met Matt Berry, the director, before I came to SPC. The week before SPC's Welcome Week, I was there."

In addition to being a member of South Plains Baptist Student Ministry, Caden served as a Campus Ambassador, was on the rodeo team and was a part of the Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society.

While at SPC, Caden participated in a tech competition hosted by Warren CAT in Brownfield, where he placed third overall. He also was named Homecoming King in 2023 and has been on the president's list all four semesters.

Since receiving his basic diesel technology certificate at SPC last year, Caden said he has been looking forward to graduation and completing his college journey.

"Without my faith in God and Him leading me and blessing me, I couldn't have made it a day," he said. "It was all through Him."

Caden is the son of Beau and Melissa Lamb, who homeschooled and prepared him for his time at SPC. After graduation, Caden will work at Warren CAT in Amarillo.

The Commencement Ceremony

The Commencement Ceremony, as a whole, affirms the value of learning to society and recognizes the cooperation of many people, on and off campus, who have contributed to the learning enterprise. Above all, it celebrates the effort and achievements, as symbolized by diplomas, degrees and gowns, of the graduates themselves.

The Academic Costume

The origin of the academic costumes worn in commencement ceremonies can be traced to the Middle Ages, when long-sleeved, hooded gowns were necessary for warmth in the unheated stone college. These garments were worn at all academic events, including lectures. Each European college or university had its set of garments indicating the status of the wearers. In the United States, an intercollegiate system of academic costumes has been used since 1894, and the garments are worn chiefly on ceremonial occasions.

Wearing the academic costumes symbolizes the placing of scholarship, that is the attempt to be intellectually honest, above personal preference and current fashion. The academic procession symbolizes the continuity of the tradition of learning and the search for truth in its various forms through the centuries. It is meant to communicate the feeling that such an effort is of value however imperfect it may be.

The design of the gown indicates the degree attained. The Bachelor's is a simple gown with a full sleeve. The Master's gown is similar, except for the sleeve which extends to a point. The Doctor's gown is more elaborate and quite full. It has velvet edging and three velvet stripes on the sleeve. The color of this velvet may be black or the color appropriate to the degree. Academic gowns which differ from these characteristics are those worn by persons who have received their degrees from universities outside the United States.

Hoods of varying sizes are worn over the gowns and are generally reserved for the Master's and Doctor's gowns. The hood has velvet edging, the color of which indicates the area of specialization, as does the tassel on the cap. The academic colors include the following:

Apricot – Nursing	Drab – Business	Orange – Engineering
Dark Blue – Philosophy	Green – Medicine	Pink – Music
Light Blue – Education	Green Sage – Physical Education	Purple – Law
Brown – Fine Arts	Lemon – Library Science	Scarlet – Theology
Citron – Social Sciences	Maize – Agriculture	White – Arts and Letters
Copper – Economics	Maroon – Home Economics	Golden Yellow – Science

The inside of the hood is satin and indicates, by its colors and their arrangements, the college or university which granted the degree.

For example:

Texas Tech University – Scarlet and Black
University of Texas – Orange and White
Texas A&M University – Maroon and White
West Texas A&M University – Maroon and White
Eastern New Mexico University – Green and Silver
New Mexico State University – Crimson and White
