FACULTY EXCELLENCE AWARD

Jimmy Stratton

Associate Professor in Welding and Chairperson of Industrial Technology
2025 Faculty Excellence Award

Jimmy Stratton first stepped onto the South Plains College campus as a student who hoped to find success in the welding profession. Now, he is being recognized for 17 years of dedication to students on a similar path.

Stratton began his academic journey by earning an Associate of Applied Science in welding technology from SPC. He later obtained professional certifications in welding inspection and welding education from the American Welding Society.

During his teaching career at SPC, Stratton served in multiple roles from welding faculty member to program coordinator of welding technology. Since becoming chairperson of the college's Industrial Technology Department in June 2022, he has taken on more responsibilities, overseeing significant growth.

"When I was first hired, my role was straightforward: provide high-quality instruction in welding and graduate students who were job-ready on day one," Stratton said. "That mission remains, but my role has evolved to focus on leadership, innovation and strategic growth."

Since August 2007, the welding technology program has expanded from three instructors at one location serving about 40 students to nine full-time faculty members at three SPC locations serving over 100 students, including dual credit students from several area high schools. In addition to welding, Stratton said he oversees six other programs as department chair.

"I remain committed to producing highly skilled, workforce-ready graduates," he said. "I also recognize that without robust recruitment efforts, there would be no students to teach. That's why I've actively pursued every opportunity to grow our enrollment and extend our programs' reach."

Recognizing the need to adapt to evolving industry demands, Stratton championed the integration of emerging technologies and innovative teaching strategies into the curriculum.

One of Stratton's initiatives for welding technology integrated classroom content into SPC's Learning Management System, which he said maximized hands-on lab time for students while keeping theory-based content online. A few results of this initiative included improved test scores and program completion rates.

"We continue to explore innovative ways to buy back time for our students," he said. "By shifting some content online, we give students flexible, accessible learning pathways and maintain the integrity and rigor of our technical programs."

The development of Master Courses is an initiative that Stratton said streamlined faculty onboarding and ensured consistency in course delivery across sections. These shared course shells foster a culture of peer learning and continuous improvement among faculty.

"This collaborative model not only supports instructional excellence but also strengthens the professional development of new and experienced faculty," he said.

By sharing these strategies across the Industrial Technology Department, Stratton said he has seen similar results in other programs and has noticed a deeper understanding of instructional and workforce requirements. He said this has fostered more effective teaching and learning in technical education.

"My role has grown from instructor to advocate, innovator, recruiter and collaborator, which all serve the mission of delivering exceptional technical education and preparing the next generation of skilled professionals," he said.

In addition to his work in the Industrial Technology Department, Stratton contributes to other areas of the college. He serves on numerous committees, including the Grounds Committee, Faculty Senate, Distance Education Committee and Distinguished Alumni Committee. He also serves as an ultra-ambassador and faculty mentor for Anthology.

Stratton was nominated for a 2025 Anthology Catalyst Award in the Leading Change category and was previously nominated for an award in the Student Success category in 2022. He was also invited to present at the 2025 Anthology Together Conference, the premier national conference for digital learning and educational leadership.

When not supporting students at SPC, Stratton volunteers as a welding coach for area high schools. His service also extends to the community through leadership roles, such as president-elect of the Levelland Breakfast Rotary Club and superintendent of Lubbock County Agricultural Mechanics competitions and exhibitions.

Despite his many responsibilities, Stratton remains focused on improving students' lives at SPC. He said cross-departmental collaboration is one cornerstone that will help students achieve success in their respective disciplines.

"The modern workforce thrives on cooperation and interdisciplinary problem-solving, and we must model those values in the classroom," he said. "By partnering with other programs and departments, we provide students with a richer, more relevant learning experience that mirrors the collaborative environments they'll encounter in their careers."

PRESIDENT'S STUDENT OF THE YEAR

Paige Ward

President's Student of the Year Recipient

Paige Ward of Grove City, Ohio, has been named the 2025 recipient of the South Plains College President's Student of the Year award.

The President's Student of the Year is an honor presented annually to an outstanding student who exemplifies excellence in academics and has contributed the most to the SPC campus environment. It is the highest recognition a student can receive at the college.

Paige, a graduating chemistry major who started at SPC in the summer of 2023, said she is honored to receive the award and is grateful to the college for selecting her.

"It's bittersweet because I'm going to miss SPC," she said. "I love the students; I love the teachers. There's no other place I'd rather be."

When her husband, Jacob, was in the military, he wanted to attend Texas Tech University. Paige also wanted to start her higher education and learned about SPC from co-workers.

Paige is graduating with an Associate of Science in chemistry and has taken pre-requisites for pharmacy education. From the faculty to her peers, she said she has made connections at SPC that she could not make anywhere else.

"I love the campus," she said. "I like the class sizes, as you can talk to your professors more easily than at a larger institution."

When she had a question, Paige said her teachers always took time to talk to her. In addition to study rooms, the library database and other resources on campus, she enjoyed using the Success Team function on her MySPC webpage to get in touch with a program adviser.

"A lot of people don't know they have it," she said regarding Success Team. "It's nice to talk to an adviser who's a teacher and knows the next steps in a program."

Dr. Laci Alexander, professor of chemistry, and Robert Plant, assistant professor of mathematics, are a few SPC faculty members whom Paige had the pleasure of meeting. She said they have been her cheerleaders since she started at the college.

"They've always helped me through problems or helped me find someone who can help," she said. "When I felt discouraged, they reminded me that being a student is a journey, and I need to pace myself."

When not studying, Paige participated in the SPC Science Club and the Bridges Across Texas - Louis Stokes Alliance for Minority Participation (BAT-LSAMP) partnership. She also served as the president of SPC Student Life's Texas Activities Council.

Paige was a part of the SPC Honors Program and the Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society. She has been recognized on the dean's list and won two other student awards: Outstanding Student in Pre-Pharmacy and the Louis Stokes Alliance for STEM awards.

In addition, Paige is a recipient of the SPC Founders Opportunity Scholarship, Neal and Carolyn Ellis Scholarship and the Louis Stokes Alliances Scholarship.

Paige is the daughter of Jeff and Vicki Mayer and is a graduate of Grove City High School. Regarding her time after SPC, she said she applied to the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center's pharmacy program and wants to do an oncology or geriatrics fellowship at some point.

"Some people don't realize how important pharmacists are," she said. "They work with people to ensure they stay on life-saving medications."

Helping people overcome their medical issues is one of Paige's career goals. She said she credits SPC for helping her get closer to this goal.

"I'm just thankful for my time at SPC," she said. "I don't think I would be in the same position if I went anywhere else, and I don't think my education would be the same. SPC does not get enough credit."

SPENCER AWARDS

Samarrae Salazar

Thomas Spencer, Sr. Award Recipient

Samarrae Salazar of Plainview has been named the 2025 recipient of South Plains College's Thomas Spencer, Sr. Award for Outstanding Achievement.

The award is presented annually to an outstanding student who demonstrates the qualities of leadership and service to the college and community. The late Dr. Thomas Spencer, Sr., played an important role in the formative years of SPC as its founding president. In conjunction with the college's 40th anniversary, the Thomas Spencer Sr. Award was established in 1998.

Samarrae, a graduating teacher education major who started at SPC in Fall 2022, said it means a lot to receive the award. She said it is important for students to escape their comfort zone and realize they are capable of more than they think.

"I'm grateful to have gotten the opportunity to be nominated," she said. "I really couldn't have done it without my professors, friends and peers for believing in me."

When it was time to consider higher education, Samarrae said SPC was always at the forefront of her mind due to the benefits of a smaller college community. She started her college career as a business major but was encouraged to pursue teaching.

"Dr. Erika Warnick was one professor who pushed me to do bigger and greater things," Samarrae said. "Her encouragement was a big part in me changing my major."

Samarrae, who worked at a daycare after graduating from Plainview High School, developed a passion for working with kids and started taking classes to fulfill an Associate of Arts in Teaching for secondary education and early childhood to eighth grade. In addition to her studies, she has devoted her time to serving as a student leader in SPC Student Life, which gave her more opportunities to work with young kids who visited the campus.

"Phebe Dowels pushed me a lot this semester," she said. "She believes in all her students."

Samarrae is a member of the Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society, a president's and dean's list honoree and a recipient of the James and Sycily Lattimore Family Scholarship and the Virginia Nelson Memorial Scholarship in Teacher Education. She is the daughter of Mario and Claudia Salazar and the oldest of four daughters.

After SPC, Samarrae will attend West Texas A&M University to pursue a bachelor's degree in teacher education.

"I just want to work with kids," she said regarding her goals. "I want to be as good a teacher as the ones that supported and pushed me."

Jamie Miller

Vera Sue Spencer Award Recipient

Jamie Miller of Athens, Georgia, has been named the 2025 recipient of South Plains College's Vera Sue Spencer Award.

The award is presented to an SPC student who demonstrates the qualities of outstanding leadership and service to the college and the community. Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Spencer established the award in memory of their daughter, Vera Sue, who died while Dr. Spencer was serving as president at SPC. The award was established by the Spencer family in 1971.

Jamie, a graduating sociology major who started at SPC in Fall 2022, said receiving the award is a huge honor.

"I'm grateful to Angelica Mendoza of the STAR Center who nominated me," she said. "I'm grateful that SPC saw something in me they wanted to recognize."

Jamie is a non-traditional student who graduated from Gainesville High School in Gainesville, Georgia. She said SPC became a steppingstone in finishing her degree.

"SPC felt like a good place to get my feet wet and develop a foundation in my education before I move on and attend larger schools, like Texas Tech."

The size of the college was one benefit that Jamie said drew her to the campus community. While at SPC, she has connected with staff members at the STAR Center and multiple professors. She said Elaina Fitzgerald, assistant professor of sociology, is one faculty member who has been influential and always present for her students.

Jamie is a former president of SPC's SPeCtra club and a former Student Government speaker of the Senate at the college. She was also a president's and dean's list honoree.

In 2024, Jamie was awarded an All-Texas Academic Team medallion for her outstanding academic achievement and exemplary community service. In addition to receiving the 2024 Coca-Cola Leaders of Promise Scholarship from the Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society, she is a recipient of the SPC Founders Opportunity Scholarship, the W.V. and Mattie Muriel Felker Memorial Scholarship and the SPC Texan Opportunity Scholarship.

"It feels familial," she said regarding the SPC community. "Everybody here works together to ensure students get the education and support they need."

In the future, Jamie wants to work at a non-profit that mitigates food insecurity and hopes to start a non-profit. After SPC, she plans on attending Texas Tech University to receive her bachelor's and master's degrees and hopes to obtain a doctoral degree someday.

The Commencement Ceremony

The Commencement Ceremony, as a whole, affirms the value of learning to society and recognizes the cooperation of many people, on and off campus, who have contributed to the learning enterprise. Above all, it celebrates the effort and achievements, as symbolized by diplomas, degrees and gowns, of the graduates themselves.

The Academic Costume

The origin of the academic costumes worn in commencement ceremonies can be traced to the Middle Ages, when long-sleeved, hooded gowns were necessary for warmth in the unheated stone college. These garments were worn at all academic events, including lectures. Each European college or university had its set of garments indicating the status of the wearers. In the United States, an intercollegiate system of academic costumes has been used since 1894, and the garments are worn chiefly on ceremonial occasions.

The design of the gown indicates the degree attained. The Bachelor's is a simple gown with a full sleeve. The Master's gown is similar, except for the sleeve which extends to a point. The Doctor's gown is more elaborate and quite full. It has velvet edging and three velvet stripes on the sleeve. The color of this velvet may be black or the color appropriate to the degree. Academic gowns which differ from these characteristics are those worn by persons who have received their degrees from universities outside the United States.

Hoods of varying sizes are worn over the gowns and are generally reserved for the Master's and Doctor's gowns. The hood has velvet edging, the color of which indicates the area of specialization, as does the tassel on the cap. The academic colors include the following:

Apricot – Nursing
Dark Blue – Philosophy
Light Blue – Education
Brown – Fine Arts
Citron – Social Sciences
Copper – Economics
Drab – Business
Green – Medicine
Green Sage – Physical Education
Lemon – Library Science
Maize – Agriculture
Maroon – Home Economics
Orange – Engineering
Pink – Music
Purple – Law
Scarlet – Theology
White – Arts and Letters
Golden Yellow – Science

The inside of the hood is satin and indicates, by its colors and their arrangements, the college or university which granted the degree.

For example:

Texas Tech University – Scarlet and Black
University of Texas – Orange and White
Texas A&M University – Maroon and White
West Texas A&M University – Maroon and White
Eastern New Mexico University – Green and Silver
New Mexico State University – Crimson and White
